IDEMIA today announced the appointment of Pierre Barrial as CEO of the newly created Secure Enterprise Transactions (SET) division.

POSTED ON 02.20.19

IDEMIA Group CEO Yann Delabrière today announced that all existing Group transactions business units, i.e. Financial Institutions, Mobile Operators and Connected Objects will be brought together under one division. In addition, the IDEMIA Group is also considering the creation of a new Digital business unit within the SET division.

IDEMIA's customers, i.e. banks, fintech firms, telecoms operators, smartphone manufacturers, IoT firms and automotive manufacturers, are rising to the challenge of managing online services and getting digital. Against such a backdrop, while IDEMIA will continue to develop its long-time expertise in cutting-edge technologies such as cryptography, artificial intelligence, biometrics or cloud communications, the new SET division will deliver connectivity, payment and identity solutions as customers require under a revamped offering that guarantees IDEMIA's services efficiency, fluidity and security. By creating the new SET division, IDEMIA will streamline its structure so as to foster a far-reaching Group vision that will give customers further growth opportunities on new markets.

As market leader, we harness technologies that are crucial for digital, the new reality, i.e. secure connectivity management, secure payments and secure identity management. The new SET division will support customers as they go digital while continuing to provide value-enhancing and trail-blazing services for their traditional operations. Pierre Barrial is a top class business manager and I have no doubt at all he will be a complete success in his new job.
